THE Cincinnati Light Guard has voted to adopt rifle practice on one day of each month hereafter. The first match is set tor Thanksgiving day.

THE Ladies' Sewing Society of the Sixth Presbyterian Church, on Eastern avenue, will give an oyster supper this evening, at Fulton Hall.

CHARLES FRANKLIN had his heel crushed badly, yesterday afternoon, by being run over by a John-street car. He was taken to the Cincinnati Hospital.

The funds raised at the benefit enter-tainments for the relief of the widow of Captain Farrell, were paid over yester-day. The proceeds amount to the hand-some sum of $1,975 50.

THE jury in the case of James O'Brien, charged with the larceny of a lot of guipure lace from W. H. Tarr's store, on Fifth street, rendered a verdict of not guitty. O'Brien's accomplice, Mrs. M. Meyers, failed to put in an appearance in the Police Court yesterday evening, and her bail was declared forteited.

The surveys were made yesterday for the water supply for the lakes at Spring Grove Cemetery. The laying of the pipes under Millcreek will commence immediately. A grotto is to be con-structed in the cemetery in front of the old Hill hopestead and a passed to be old Hill homestead, and a cascade to be formed for the supply of the old and new

THE Joint Committee of Aldermen and Councilmen and heads of departments, yesterday alternoon, in their discussion to consider ways of retrenchment in the various city departments, did nothing of importance. The Police Department was importance. The Police Department was discussed and many different opinions of the practicability of retrenching were offered. The salaries should be cut down so as to give patrolmen $800, lieutenants $900 and captains $1,000 per annum. Others wanted to cut down the number of patrolmen. Both of these motions were opposed, and as no defluite conclusion could be arrived at, Mr. Halpin presented a resolution to call on the heads of the departments to present the heads of the departments to present their views, at a meeting to be held next Saturday, at 2 P. M., as to the reduction in pay and men that may be made, which carried.

THE HORN CASE.

The Coroner's Inquest this Morning.

The Coroner this morning held an inquest on the body of Peter Horn, who died yesterday morning at the hospital from supposed injuries received by being struck on the head with a beer-glass, on Wednesday of last week, by William

Dr. Mackenzle, who made the post mortem, being the first witness sworn, offered the following as the result of his offered the following as the result of his examination:

The body was not at all decomposed. Post mortem rigidity of the muscles well marked. There was a slight bruise just behind the left ear, which, however, was quite superficial. No mark of injury on any other part of the body or head. When the scalp was dissected from the skull there was no evidence of anything unnatural upon its under surface opposite the bruise. The skull was quite healthy; no fracture anywhere. The outer membrane of the brain was healthy; along the course of the blood vessels situated in the depressions between the convex or upper surface and the base or lower surface, was a deposit of yellow color and semi-fluid consistence, indicating inflammation of the two inner membranes of the brain. This was as abundant on one side as on the other. There was an unnatural amount of fluid in the ventricles of the brain, and the blood vessels in the substance of the the blood vessels in the substance of the brain were fuller than usual. Otherwise the the brain itself seemed healthy. The other organs of the body were carefully examined but found quite healthy.

In my opinion death was caused in this case by meningitis or inflammation of the membranes of the brain, and this of the membranes of the brain, and this was not dependent on any injury which he may have received.

Dr. Allison Maxwell, one of the resident physicians of the Cincinnati Hospital, was the next witness, and testified that the deceased was admitted Saturday evening, Nov. 13, brought in by two policemen; found him, upon examination, delirious; recognized odor of liquor upon his breath. I thought at the time that the main trouble was from the offects of liquor. He continued in a delirious condition all the time until death; saw no evidence of violence, only slight. saw no evidence of violence, only slight abrasion of the skin behind the left ear, The cause of death was accute inflam-mation of the brain; and am satisfied that the injury he received had nothing to do with the cause of death.

lo do with the cause of death.

The testimony of others interested were mainly the same. That upon the evening in question, Seitz and Horn had some little difficulty in Sundmaker's saloon, which resulted in Saitz striking the latter with a beer glass. Horn was alterward taken to the Hospital, where he died yesterday morning. Horn, it seems from the testimony, had been drinking for some time, and was drunk the evening of the difficulty.

The jury returned the following verdict:

The jury returned the following verdict:

"We the jury find that the deceased came to hisdeath from acute inflamation of the brain; we further find, from the medical testimony, that the injuries which he received had nothing to do with his death."

than Warburton or Stevens, or any other that now lives, in our mind. His theory of "Hamlet's" madness is the one now generally accepted as the correct one, that it is but a cloak donned for the purpose. So clearly did be expound his theory that the dullest might see at a glance that "Hamlet's" madness had done that "Hamlet's" madness had considerable "method in it." The support was excellent, and never has a play been as well sustained in all its parts as was that last evening. Miss Biy as the "Flayer Queen" gave the best reading of the part we ever heard. Miss De Forrest as "Opholia" was a little weak in the mad scenes, but excellent in the preceding ones. Mr. Sullivan appears as "Richelleu" this evening.

An Alarm Clock.

The Alta tells this story about an "alarm" that meant business:

A gentleman living in West San Fran-A gentleman living in west sain tran-cisco went to Gilroy yesterday morning by the 8:30 train. He had been accus-tomed to rise about that time, and lest he should not wake by half-past six— having no confidence in the Chinese domestic and still less in the probability of his wife's waking bim in time, though she insisted she would—he thought best to procure an alarm clock, and an instru-ment which-turned out to be what it pur-ported was borrowed for the occasion

"That's business," said the West-ender, with much satisfaction, "One can retire at peace with the world and all the rest of mankind, and sleep like a top till Zipl and away she goes at the right time."

till Zip! and away she goes at the right time."

"Oh! yes, I suppose you feel better, but you can't set it. You'll have to depend on me after all."

"A woman's a good nuxiliary in her place, Sal., but you just wait." And the gentleman adjusted the clock for what he supposed would be six o'clock, and went down town, whistling "I'm off by the morning train."

"The glorious king of day" was just beginning to rejoice in the east Sunday morning, when that clock began to go off at the head of the bed. It was out of order, or had not been set right. I's effect upon the unaccustomed ear of persented the set of persented the set of the set of the set of persented the set of persent

The glorious king of day" was just beginning to rejoice in the east Sunday morning, when that clock began to go off at the head of the bed. It was out of order, or had not been set right. Its effect upon the unaccustomed ear of persons just aroused from deep sleep and the visions of the night must have been as whon "a thousand ghosts shriek-at once on the hollow wind." There is a dispute which waked first, but the wife contests her claim with copious central diction, and is supported by the solitary dircunstance that the policeman heard her voice first. This, to the female mind, is conclusive corroboration that she was awake when the clock was unnecessary, which is the main point she desires to establish; and yet she blames the clock for causing her to open the window and cry "fire" twenty times. It was this appailing clamor which attracted the alert ear of the policeman. He knew the nouse and the people, "Aye,aye," said he,and off he lew to the hearest alarm station, opened the box, and began to turn for dear life, when the core left the box and refurned to the house. A hysterical woman was predigitating pillows and pictures out of the window, and saking him where the fire was, and he would have got promating man popped out his pate, and asked ing man popped out his pate, and asked i

Notwithstanding that waking at "early cock-crowing," the gentleman got off to Gilroy by a scratch, and when he returns to-morrow, he will find it rumored that he attempted to murder his wife, and fled to avoid custody. Moral—do not fool with alarm clocks.

Three Pennsylvania girls who started West about a month ago with the inten-tion of adding to Brigham Young's stock of wives, all got married to ratiroad cou-ductors before they reached Omaha. Fifty thousand Massachusetts spinsters are earnestly wanting to know what lines they traveled by.

FULL MEASURE.

While Dr. PRICE'S TRUE FLAVORINGS are full measure, other extracts are short nearly one-half what they are said to contain, arranged to look large and sell cheau, a cheat on the consumer. The most of the so-called two-ounce flavoring extracts hold but one and one-quarter ounces, the four-ounce less than three ounces, while Dr. Price's are full measure, just as represented, strong and pure. One trial will prove that the bottles hold one-half more than others purporting to be tha same size, and the extracts are of the strongest and most natural flavor.

dare say, of that audience were in the ienst disappointed by this great scholar and actor. We say scholar—for Mr. Builivan, though an actor that may cope with any that now tread the boards, is yet a greater scholar, as far as dramatic attainments are concerned. His rendition of "Hamlet" last evening was a master-piece, and though Mr. Booth or Mr. Davenport might have acted it as well, it not better, neither could have given as clear and scholarly a conception, not only of the whole character, but of the separate and individual lines of the part, as he did the new readings and the many innovations of the traditional "Hamlet." We have neither tipne nor space to mention, but through some, from their very newness, struck many rather unfavorably, none were without foundation, and if they did nothing more than others purporting to be the same size, and the extraorable and most natural favor.

"That's what I want to know, I guess," said the officer. "What's the row yourself? I heard you tolks carry-i go nike all possessed, singin' out fire, and bloody murder, and I don't know what. And now what's the matter, says you; what have you got in there?"

All this time there came from the interior a horrid hum like forty death gurges. The officer felt it his duty to demand further satisfaction, but Mrs. Lendem, a neighbor, put her head opportunely out, and said, "Hil there, I know what it is. It's a fitteen-minute alarm clock. I heard it. There it goes—zab, zab, zi, zi, zi, zerg! Them folks ain't used to it. That's all. Your husband will have slathers of time, Mrs. Earlyenough," she said.

"Sold again," said the philosophical gentleman, as he let down the sash suddenly, just missing his wife's fingers.
